

Department of Biology GE Courses 2017 - 2018

Course Code	Course Title and Description	Units & Hours
Department of Biology GE Courses
GDSC1005	Environmental Principles and Contemporary Environmental Issues In this course, specific issues covered will include resources management, food safety, public health, sustainable development, ecotourism, nature conservation and ecological footprint. In order to better illustrate these core issues and their implications on policy making and application of ethical principles, relevant current environmental issues in Hong Kong, China and other countries will be cited as discussion examples.	(3,3,0)
GDSC1006	You and Your Environment This course aims to introduce to non-science major students the principles and issues of environmental science. The topics selected will demonstrate how human activities cause environmental problems and what concepts and technologies can be applied to solve these problems.	(3,3,0)
GDSC1007	You and Your Health This is an introductory course to non-science major student on the basics of human body and how factors from the living environment may affect our health. Topics chosen are closely related to health and diseases. Specific health problems and issues of interest will be selected for discussion.	(3,3,0)